

ARRIVAL: Air cadets file into the parish church.

Hushed crowd gathers at memorial

STANDING TO ATTENTION: Air cadets in Windsor.

WINDSOR: Traffic was temporarily halted while a crowd gathered outside Windsor Parish Church to honour those who died in the Battle of Britain.

About 50 people watched as a squad from the Windsor Air Cadets and members of the Royal Air Force Association marched from Park Street to the church in the High Street before laying wreaths on the war memorial.

"Let us remember with thanks giving those who gave their lives so that we might live," were the words of Reverend Ainsley Swift to the silent crowd.

A service then took place in the church and the Mayor of the Royal Borough of Windsor and Maidenhead, Cllr Richard Kellaway, delivered a speech pledging that the actions of those who died will be remembered by generations to come.

DOZENS gathered to watch as wreaths were laid on the war memorial outside Maidenhead Town Hall on Sunday in memory of those who lost their lives in the Battle of Britain 74 years ago.

Maidenhead MP Theresa May and the Deputy Mayor of Windsor and Maidenhead, Cllr

Speed Read

SERVICES have been held in Maidenhead and Windsor to remember the heroes who gave their lives in the Battle of Britain. In Maidenhead, music on the remembrance parade was provided by the Reading Scottish Pipe Band.

James Evans, attended the remembrance.

Following a service delivered by the Reverend Will Stileman, Maidenhead Air Cadets and members of the Royal Air Force Association marched from St Mary's Church in Maidenhead High Street to the war memorial in St Ives Road.

They were accompanied by the sound of bag pipes, played by the Reading Scottish Pipe Band.

The Battle of Britain, fought in 1940, was a momentous campaign in the Second World War, in which thousands died.

It was the first major battle fought entirely by air forces and Hitler's failure to destroy Britain's air defences was seen as a crucial turning point in the war.

Sunday's ceremony was one of many happening all around the country to remember the fallen.
